[(Teaching Language and Literacy: Preschool Through the Elementary Grades)] [Author: James F. Christie] [Apr-2013] By James F. Christie, Billie Jean Enz, Carol Vukelich, Kathleen A. Roskos

Facilitating children's reading, writing, speaking, and listening development in pre-K through grade 5 is the focus of this highly respected text, now updated in a new Fifth Edition. In it, the authors show how teachers can effectively promote the development of oral and written language and describe numerous scientifically-based instructional practices that have been proven to be successful in supporting children's reading, writing, speaking and listening development. In the first part of the book the authors present a solid foundation of language and literacy learning; look in depth at children's oral language development; discuss family literacy and what children learn about reading and writing in the early years; show how to provide opportunities for reciprocal conversation and discussion; provide additional content on promoting oral language in the elementary grades and present a new section that focuses on vocabulary instruction for young children. The second part of the book discusses language arts instruction at the pre-K and kindergarten levels, and Part 3 focuses on elementary-grade reading and writing instruction and assessing older children's literacy performance.
