Editorial Review

About the Author

Heinz von Foerster (1911–2002) studied physics and worked in various research laboratories in Austria and Germany before emigrating in 1948 to the USA, where he founded the now legendary Biological Computer Laboratory at the University of Illinois. He is the author of many books and one of the founders of the theory of knowledge that now goes by the name "constructivism." Monika Silvia Broecker holds a master's degree in science of communication from the University of Arts, Berlin, Germany. From 1998 to 2002, she worked closely with Heinz von Foerster in Pescadero, California. She trained in brief therapy at the Mental Research Institute in Palo Alto, California, with Paul Watzlawick and Richard Fisch, and at the Brief Family Therapy Institute in Milwaukee, Wisconsin, with Insoo Kim Berg and Steve de Shazer. She has had an extensive career in learning and leadership development. She built and led People Management Development and the School of Personal Growth at Google, Inc., in Mountain View, California. Monika is the founder of the Center for Personal Growth (<http://center4personalgrowth.com>) and the author and editor of numerous publications. She has served on the editorial board of the scientific journal Kybernetes and has edited two special double issues of the journal: one on Heinz von Foerster and the other on Gregory Bateson.
